Periodicals in the Library of the Society of Friends

The Library holds about 2,000 periodical titles past and present, many not held elsewhere in the UK. It receives about 60 current journals and newsletters. The collection is an important resource for finding out about Quaker thought and activity worldwide.

The Library is the official repository for all publications of Britain Yearly Meeting and its central committees, including annual reports, journals and newsletters.

It also collects overseas yearly meeting proceedings and journals, and the publications of international Quaker non-governmental organisations, such as Friends World Committee for Consultation (FWCC), Quaker Council for European Affairs (QCEA), and Quaker United Nations Offices (QUNO) based in New York and Geneva.

Included in the collection are newsletters and reports of Quaker organisations (such as Friends Ambulance Unit), special interest groups (such as Quaker Action on Alcohol and Drugs), and informal groups (such as Young Friends Central Committee). There are also Quaker journals on theology, religious experience, literature, and the arts.

Periodical holdings go back to 1780, with the first Ackworth School annual reports. Rare and historically important titles include William Allen's Philanthropist (1811-1816), Luke Howard's Yorkshireman (1833-1837), and Anti-Caste, edited by Catherine Impey (1888-1895). Also rich for historical research are periodicals such as the Monthly Record and publications of Quaker foreign missions.

A small number of periodicals in the collection are published by non-Quaker organisations in areas where Friends were historically active, such as the peace and anti-slavery movements. These include Peace News, and periodicals published by the Central Board for Conscientious Objectors and the Anti-Slavery Society.

Finding periodicals

You can search for any periodical title using our online catalogue, available here: www.quaker.org.uk/cat.

Use the expert search option and select "Serials" from the drop down list at the top to limit your search to periodicals. For more tips on searching (including searching for articles from key periodicals that are individually catalogued) see our tips:

www.quaker.org.uk/documents/library-catalogue-search-tips

The catalogue gives full details of each periodical, with dates of issues held, and any gaps in our holdings.

To access the collection, you need to book an appointment. Find more details of how to book here:

www.quaker.org.uk/resources/library/visit-the-library.
